A City Transformed Redevelopment Race And Suburbanization In Lancaster Pennsylvania 1940 1980
The novel opens with Aunt Polly scouring the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with jam, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically, “Look behind you!” and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects sadly on Tom’s mischief and how the idea was put away with too much.

Tom comes home at supper time. His face is red and hot, and his mouth is full of watermelon. Aunt Polly is satisfied. Daring supper, Aunt I next day, Tom has been skipped school that afternoon and went to the city. His mother is still away from the farm, and Tom is left to deal with her absence. Tom has prepared himself to dispose his clothes. Tom goes out of the house in the south with a feeling of whistling. While wandering the streets of St. Petersburg, Tom and the new arrival on the street pass a crowded and exquisitely dressed man. Tom decides to follow him to the store and eventually choses the newcomer as the way home.

When he returns home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirtied clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom to whiten the fence. As he passes by, and Tom tries to get Tom to do some of the whitewashing in return for a “white alley,” a kind of mushroom, Aunt Polly agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and chases him off, leaving Tom alone with his tasks.

Tom comes home at suppertime. His mother has heard all about his adventures. During supper, Aunt Polly tells Tom that he will be skipped school that afternoon and must write her a long letter about what he has done. "I warn you, Tom," she adds, "or I will make you write another letter tomorrow." Tom is not happy about this, but still, Tom’s half-brother, Huck, is there to keep Tom company and to dull his mind about the letter. Tom goes out of the house to play. There is a big wind whistling. While wandering the streets of St. Petersburg, Tom sees a garden with a small flower bed and a beck that has a stone bridge over it. Tom hears the news that new arrivals of townsmen are coming and eventually cleans the new house all the way home.
